The Actor-Reality Perspective

Third conference

About the conference
In this third conference following the first conference held in Gothenburg in 2011 and the second held in Pisa 2012, we intend to consolidate and further develop the pragmatic constructivist framework and the Actor-Reality Perspective on management.

This year’s conference invites for three categories of contributions:
- Full papers
- Research ideas
- PhD-projects

Full papers will be assigned a discussant and given sufficient time at the conference to debate and hopefully further develop the papers. Papers submitted to the full paper category must be in a rather develop state more or less ready for submission to a relevant journal. Within the category research ideas, papers that are less developed will be discussed based on the presentation made by the author. Submission within this category can be made based either on an abstract or a full paper. The category PhD-project is meant for PhD-students who work or plan to work with pragmatic constructivism as analytical framework in his or hers PhD-project. Submissions within this category require at least a synopsis that describes the planned research project. In addition to the possibility to present the research project at the conference, an experienced scholar within the field will provide written and oral feedback to the PhD-student. Contributions within the three categories must be submitted to Morten Jakobsen (mja@asb.dk) no later than September 1st 2013.

Just as the last two conferences, this year’s conference welcomes submissions of all kinds. For instance: theoretical and conceptual papers; empirical papers inspired by a broad field of organisational contexts; topics like management control, accounting, performance measurement, communication responsibility, ethics, etc.
